1354 Occupational Safety & Health Program (OSHA)

The SC OSHA Compliance Program enforces workplace safety and health regulations by conducting unannounced inspections to identify hazards. OSHA inspectors investigate workplace fatalities, catastrophic accidents, employee-initiated complaints and other types of referrals alleging hazardous conditions. Inspectors also focus on industries and employers with a high likelihood of injuries, illnesses or fatalities. Violations are cited and penalties may be assessed. OSHA consultants and trainers also work with employers in improving workplace safety and health conditions. This activity is governed by the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 and Title 41, Chapter 15 of the S.C. Code of Laws.

1780 Boiler Inspection Program

It is unknown at this time how many Boilers will be registered by this program. Current estimates are between 12,000 and 15,000. These professions are regulated to make sure that some minimum level of skill is met to support public health and safety. The POL program was established to oversee the administration of licensing programs which have quasi legislative and judicial functions. They promulgate regulations and adopt a code of professional ethics. They also determine the eligibility of applicants for examination and licensure, evaluate and approve continuing education course hours and programs and discipline licensees. The provisions of this activity are governed by Title 41, Chapter 14 of the SC Code of Laws.
